An Insulting Marching Song A British army doctor named Richard Shuckburgh was treating wounded soldiers from the French and Indian War. He looked at the scruffy colonial soldiers in the midst of the snappy-looking British. As one story says, he changed the words of the old marching song to make fun of the American colonists.

saw or thought or did or heard became a song. That was very long ago. The songs remained; Kino knew them, but no new songs were added. That does not mean that there were no personal songs. In Kino's head there was a song now, clear and soft, and if he had been able to speak of it, he would have called it the Song of the Family.
